Buy a Pink Bun and Extend – a – Hand to the Breast Cancer Network Australia

This month Extend Australia joins forces with Bakers Delight in selling Pink Buns to help raise money to the Breast Cancer Network Australia (BCNA). “We are more than just an Out of School Hours Care provider, ” states Darren Stevenson, Director of Extend, “ ‘Extend – a – Hand’ gives us the opportunity to play a significant role with our Australian community, which is particularly important in light of the recent tragedies that have touched us all this year.”

The BCNA is the national voice for Australians personally affected by breast cancer, and every Pink Bun that is sold from Bakers Delight between now and May 13 will help support thousands of Australians diagnosed with breast cancer. The Extend Out of School Hours Care (OSHC) programs at Methodist Ladies College, St Joseph’s Primary School, Our Lady Help of Christians, St Catherine’s School, and St Benedict’s Primary School in Victoria have been working hard over the last fortnight taking orders from families at the program.

In celebration of this worthy cause, the children in the OSHC program at Methodist Ladies’ College will be having a “Pink themed Day” which will involve making exciting pink crafts and displays. “The children are very excited to be taking part in the Pink Bun Fundraiser and we believe that it is important for children, particularly as they’re growing up, to acknowledge the importance of contributing to the community”, says Jarrod, Extend Programs Coordinator.

Each participating OSHC program aims to raise $100 each to the BCNA.
